SYNOPSIS: Genji Takiya is a newly transferred high school senior who arrives at Suzuran All-Boys High School, which is infamous for its population of violent delinquents. During the freshman orientation assembly, the yakuza arrive at the school seeking vengeance on third-year Serizawa Tamao for assaulting some members of their gang. The thugs mistake Genji for their target and a brawl ensues on the school field.

Meanwhile, Serizawa is visiting his best friend Tatsukawa Tokio, who has just been discharged from a hospital. Upon returning to the school, Serizawa witnesses Genji defeat the last of the yakuza. That night, Genji goes to his frequented nightclub and meets R&B singer Aizawa Ruka. Genji goes to see his father Takiya Hideo, who is the yakuza boss. Genji proclaims his ambition to conquer Suzuran, a feat which Hideo himself had unsuccessfully attempted in his youth. Genji makes Hideo promise to acknowledge him as his successor should he succeed. The next day, Genji challenges Serizawa to a fight, but is halted by Tokio. Tokio tells Genji that if he really wants to make an impression then he should begin by defeating Rindaman, a legendary fighter at the school.

After Rindaman refuses his challenge, Genji encounters Katagiri Ken, one of the yakuza who previously arrived at the school. Ken attacks Genji in retaliation for getting his gang arrested, but is taken down with a single punch. Humbled, Ken goes with Genji to the club where they discuss the latter's plans for Suzuran. Following advice from Ken, Genji begins building his army called Genji Perfect Seiha (GPS). Anticipating the brewing conflict, Serizawa also begins recruiting factions for his own cause. Genji succeeds in rallying several strong members, including Tamura Ch?ta, Makise Takashi and Izaki Shun. Serizawa is alarmed by Genji's rapid rise to power, but chooses not to take action. One of Serizawa's lieutenants Tokaji Y?ji is not so ambivalent and begins covertly attacking members of the GPS, severely beating Ch?ta and putting Izaki in the hospital.

The provocations cause tensions between the two armies to rise drastically, but Genji is prevented from acting by Makise. One night, Tokio and Serizawa visit the nightclub and encounter Genji. When Tokio runs interference between the opposing leaders, he suffers a seizure and is rushed to a hospital. Tokio learns that he has a cerebral aneurysm which requires surgery. Despite initial hesitation about the procedure's 30% success rate, Tokio agrees to the operation. Tokaji approaches Band? Hideto, who is leader of "The Front of Armament" biker gang, with a plan to kidnap Ruka and further aggravate Genji. Elsewhere, the yakuza boss Yazaki J?ji orders Ken to kill Genji, disregarding the fact that doing so will incite a war between the yakuza organizations.

The task proves to be hard for Ken, who has grown fond of Genji and begins lamenting his decision to become a yakuza. Ken decides to inform Takiya Hideo of the plot to kill his son. Genji gets a call from Ruka, who tells him that she is being held hostage by men with skulls on their jackets, and that her captors mentioned the name "Band?". Surmising that her captors are The Armament, Genji gathers the GPS and proceeds to the biker gang's headquarters. A fight ensues, but Genji soon realizes that the men they are fighting are missing their trademark skull patches. Band? demands an end to fight, revealing that he had ordered the skulls to be removed after part of The Armament aligned with Tokaji. After locating Tokaji and saving Ruka, Genji decides it is finally time for war against Serizawa.

They decide to fight at 5:00pm the following day at the same time that Tokio will undergo his operation, with Serizawa believing it will allow him to fight alongside Tokio. The next day as the battle begins, the tide seems to be in Serizawa's favor, but after Band?'s faction of The Armament arrives and joins the GPS, the odds are evened out. The fighting continues until only Serizawa and Genji are left standing. Meanwhile, Ken is taken to the harbor to be executed for disobeying the order to kill Genji. Yazaki gives Ken his coat as a parting gift before shooting him in the back. He falls into the water and begins to sink. Genji and Serizawa fight well into the night. Though injured and exhausted, Genji eventually gains the upper hand and triumphs. Clinging to consciousness, Serizawa receives a call from the hospital informing him that Tokio's operation was a success.

Back at the docks, Ken suddenly recovers and swims to the surface. He discovers that the coat Yazaki had given to him was bulletproof, and that his "execution" was a ploy to allow him to leave the organization and live a different life. Several days later, Genji again challenges Rindaman, who is the final obstacle on his path to ruling Suzuran. Rindaman expresses his belief that Suzuran can never be truly conquered and that there will always be someone left to fight.
