Frostbite 3 is the third generation of Frostbite, which made its debut in Battlefield 4.

In the updated engine, the environments became much more dynamic upon the actions of the players and Destruction 4.0, which was known as Revolution in Battlefield 4. Need for Speed Rivals became the second game of its series to use the game engine and the first since the upgrade to Frostbite 3. On 14 July 2015, the game engine was introduced to the sports genre of video games, being put to use on Rory McIlroy PGA Tour. In November, Need for Speed and Star Wars Battlefront were both released under Frostbite 3.
