Jumper is a 2008 American science fiction action film loosely based on Steven Gould's 1992 novel of the same name. Directed by Doug Liman, the film stars Hayden Christensen as a young man capable of teleporting, as he is chased by a secret society intent on killing him. Jamie Bell, Rachel Bilson, Max Thieriot, AnnaSophia Robb, Diane Lane, Michael Rooker, and Samuel L. Jackson also star.

The script went through a rewrite prior to filming, and the roles for the main characters were changed during production. Filmed in 20 cities and 14 countries from 2007 to 2008 and released on February 14, 2008, the film grossed $225 million worldwide and received generally negative reviews from critics, mostly because of the many changes to Gould's novel, rushed plot, and anticlimactic ending.

SYNOPSIS: A young David Rice discovers he can teleport, or "jump", after he falls through thin ice on the Huron River while retrieving a snow globe for his crush, Millie Harris. He uses the ability to escape his father's abusive household and moves to New York City, where he robs banks by teleporting into their vaults.

Eight years later, David lives luxuriously in a penthouse, spending his days jumping around the world. David is confronted by Roland, leader of the Paladins; hunters who believe Jumpers are abominations. Despite Roland using specialized weapons that can disrupt a Jumper's teleportation abilities, David manages to escape to his hometown in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He finds Millie and also runs into his former high school bully, Mark. They fight, and David jumps him into a bank vault he had robbed years earlier. Mark is later questioned by Roland.

Meanwhile, David charms Millie into traveling spontaneously to Rome. He trespasses at the Colosseum when the guards turn them away, and while Millie is still outside the gate, he is attacked by the Paladins.

Griffin, another Jumper, follows David when they run into each other in London. Being a Paladin hunter, he explains who and what they are before leaving. David accidentally chases Griffin through his "jump scar" or wormhole, an event horizon created by the Jumper that they can pass through, ending up at his lair in the middle of a desert.

David quickly returns to Rome, where he's arrested. After being interrogated, his mother, Mary, suddenly appears and helps him escape before the Paladins can kill him. He quickly escorts Millie to the airport, telling her he can't get on the flight with her, and then returns to Griffin's. David follows Griffin to Tokyo, eventually convincing him to partner up to kill Roland and save Millie. They jump to the US airport, hoping to catch Millie upon arrival, but she has already gone home.

David jumps to her apartment and shows her his powers before the Paladins attack them. He quickly jumps her away to Griffin's lair, enraging him. He explains that the Paladins' technology can keep a jumper's jump scar open and pass through it. Roland and his team suddenly appear at Griffin's lair and fight them. Roland pins David with electrical webbing to the wall and nearly kills him before Griffin blasts a flamethrower.

Griffin jumps to Millie's apartment and returns the machine that keeps the scar open. However, before the scar closes, a Paladin cable pulls Millie back into her apartment. David wants to rescue her, but Griffin refuses to help, saying losing friends and family to the Paladins is simply a part of Jumper's life. He then preps a bomb to deliver back to Millie's apartment to kill Roland. David, not wanting to endanger Millie, steals the bomb, and Griffin pursues it. They engage in a lengthy battle through multiple jump sites until they finally jump to a Chechen battlefield, where David manages to trap Griffin in tangled high-tension wires.

Returning to Millie's apartment to confront the Paladins, they immediately trap David. Wanting to rescue Millie, he attempts to jump her entire apartment, a feat no Jumper had succeeded at until that point. David successfully jumps the apartment with Millie and the Paladins into the Huron River.

David then jumps himself, Millie, and Roland to the library, though the successive jumps render him unconscious. Millie revives him, and he jumps Roland to an isolated cave above the Colorado River in the Grand Canyon, reminding him that he is different from the other jumpers as he did not kill him when he had the chance.

Later, David tracks down his mother, who is also a Paladin and has worked from the inside to protect him by hiding his information from her colleagues. He accepts that they are on opposite sides, bids farewell to her on good terms, and then jumps away with Millie.
