The National Water Research Institute of Malaysia (NAHRIM) was established in 1993 with the objective to build a pool of experts and provide research services that are needed in the planning, design, building, and implementation of research related to development of water resources in particular and the environment in general, and to set up a National Focal Point that coordinates research on hydraulic engineering in Malaysia. NAHRIM started its operation in September 1995 and currently operates under the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment (NRE). It has progressed over the years to become an excellent centre in hydraulic engineering research and a supporting service to meet the demand from both public and..
