Japan Research Institute, Limited is a “knowledge engineering” company; a company that offers comprehensive, high value-added information services through the coordinated application of its three functions consisting of information systems, consulting, and think-tank. As a systems integrator, we offer services in IT strategy planning, implementation and outsourcing for a broad range of industries and activities. We particularly enjoy a stellar reputation in the development of financial systems services.

We are also active in research on both domestic and foreign economic issues and formation of policy recommendations, as well as consulting in a wide range of fields such as corporate strategy and public administrative reform. In addition, we provide analyses and surveys for incubation activities in the creation of new markets and industries. Through these operations, we offer a clear vision for our customers toward changes in the economic and social environment as well as developments in the IT area.
